

St Botolph's, Longthorpe

Our 'garden for nature' is a small area just outside the churchyard wall where wildflowers now thrive and other nectar rich plants grow. Work started in 2014 when the top 50mm of soil was removed. Weeds that grew during the summer were dug out during the autumn and wild plant seeds sown. The top soil was piled at the back of the site and nectar rich plants planted there to provide food for insects. There is a log pile and an area set aside for visiting hedgehogs

Spring on the

March 2020 Cowslip
Grown from seed
and native daffodils

Summer
flowers; corn
cockle, poppy,
oxeye daisy,
common
knapweed and lady's bedstraw