What is the Living Faith programme?

Living Faith is the name of a set of study modules that are open to any Christian wanting to know more about their faith. They also form part of the training course for Licensed Lay Ministers in the Anglican Diocese of Peterborough, and for Methodists training for lay ministry in this District.

Is it for me?

Studying a module from the Living Faith programme can be a good way of helping you to think more deeply about your faith in a wider context. You need not have done any academic study before, but you will need a reference from your church minister or training establishment tutor to say that you would benefit from this kind of study.

Can I choose any module?

You can choose any individual module that interests you, or aim to take several over the three years that it takes for the whole programme to run.

Is there any written work?

Everyone taking part in the Living Faith programme will be encouraged to keep a learning journal of work. This could take a variety of forms – a video diary, an essay, a letter, an audio recording, etc.

How much time is involved?

Each module normally takes the form of six weekly evening sessions. Students will also be expected to spend a couple of hours studying on their own each week for the duration of the module, as well as being expected to commit themselves to completing the whole module.

Where does Living Faith take place?

Over the period of three years these modules will run once. They may take place in Northampton at Bouverie Court, or at St Mark's Church, Peterborough.

What does it cost?

The fee for each module is £40 per person.

How do I find out more?

Just complete and return the form overleaf or T: 01604 887 048 and speak to Lesley-Anne Marriott in the first instance.
